Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for your response and acknowledgement of receipt of our request dated 13 December 2023 to Chickenland (Pty) Ltd t/a Nando's ("Nando's"). For present purposes, we respond as follows, and reserve our rights to respond more fully.

We have taken note of the email address of your client.

Your client's claim that Nando's "does not sell any eggs with meals at any of its branches in South Africa" is respectfully denied. According to Nando's Animal Welfare Statement available on its website for South Africa (<https://www.nandos.co.za/help/3>):

"As part of this strategy, we are working towards a global strategy to source cage-free eggs across our global business. Currently, cage-free eggs are not available in all markets in which Nando's operates but we are committed to achieve the goal of 100% free range eggs used as both whole and as an ingredient within these markets by 2030. We believe that by both joining the global drive to source cage-free eggs and working closely with our suppliers we will be able to move to 100% free range eggs (including whole eggs and eggs as an ingredient) in New Zealand and Australia by 2023; North America and South Africa by 2025; and Malaysia and Singapore by 2027".

Nando's would not need to commit to using cage-free eggs in South Africa if eggs are not sold by Nando's in South Africa, whether whole or as ingredients. As such, we maintain that Nando's is a role player in the egg supply chain, and therefore has a legal obligation to provide access to the information, given that the information is required for the protection of the environmental right, as set out in our previous correspondence. The requested records will, among others, enable the pursuit of corporate accountability and transparency in the egg supply chain in South Africa. As it currently stands, there is a worrying lack of transparency among role players in the egg supply chain - from farm to fork.

Moreover, your client's claim that it does not have any information relevant to our request is alarming given that the records relate not only to animal welfare, but the protection of the environment more broadly. We therefore request that your client revisit its refusal to provide access to the records requested, particularly those in paragraphs 7 and 8 of our PAIA request.

To the extent that Nando's seeks to refuse access on the basis that the information does not exist, it is required by s55 of PAIA to produce an affidavit noting the steps taken to locate the information. No such affidavit has been provided. We hereby request that access, alternatively the requisite affidavit, be provided. Kindly note that your client is obliged to set out and justify any grounds of refusal under PAIA.

We also wish to highlight that Nando's has not complied with its obligations in terms of s71 of PAIA in respect of the information requested. In particular, there is no indication that Nando's has informed its suppliers of our request, nor sought their consent to disclose the information we request.

Should your client fail to provide access, or a proper justification for your its refusal in terms of PAIA, by 3 June 2024, we reserve our rights to exhaust the legal remedies available to us, including but not limited to, approaching the Information Regulator to lodge a complaint in respect of Nando's, and/or approach the courts.

A collaborative and transparent approach in responding to our request is in the best interest of all parties involved - not least consumers, and chickens. We look forward to your timely and comprehensive response.

Kindly acknowledge receipt of this email.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Sirs,

We act for Chickenland (Pty) Ltd t/a Nando's ("our client").

We refer to your letter to our client dated 13 December 2023. For your future reference, please note that the incorrect email address was used for our client's Legal Counsel; it is [REDACTED]

We do not intend to respond to each and every allegation in your letter; not doing so is not to be construed as an admission by our client thereof. The allegations in your letter relating to our client's participation in the egg supply chain are incorrect. Our client does not sell any eggs with meals at any of its branches in South Africa. The menu you attached to your letter is not for South Africa. Our client accordingly does not have any information relevant to your request.

Please direct any further correspondence to ENSafrica.

Yours faithfully,

Edward Nathan Sonnenbergs Inc.
