Dear [REDACTED]

I trust you are well.

We acknowledge receipt of your correspondence dated 8 February 2024 in response to our PAIA request. In relation to Nestlé's refusal to provide access to information, we wish to place the following on record, and give Nestlé a further opportunity to be transparent and accountable in the interests of the welfare of chickens in South Africa, and the protection of the environment.

As you are no doubt aware, PAIA gives effect to the constitutional right to access to information in terms of s 32 of the Constitution. Its constitutionally ordained purpose is to promote transparency, accountability, and ensure effective governance of all bodies in South Africa, including corporations such as Nestle. PAIA is further to be interpreted in a generous and purposive manner. Following this approach, it has been held that information in private hands with a demonstrable and sufficient connection to the exercise or protection of any rights legitimately belongs in the public domain.

In relation to your allegation that “South African law does not recognise animals as legal persons with individual rights within the scope of PAIA and the bill of rights”, we submit that Nestle’s interpretation of our request and of PAIA is flawed. PAIA allows any person to request access to information in order to protect a right. ALRSA is the ‘person’ in the scenario. The right that we aim to protect is the environmental right, which, as confirmed by the Constitutional Court, encompasses the protection of animal welfare. Given that we are emerging from a pandemic caused by human-animal disease transfer, it ought to be self-evident that animal welfare and an environment not harmful to the health and wellbeing of us all are intertwined. Nestle’s basis for refusal of access to information is therefore totally flawed. Moreover, and in any event, as required by the environmental right, our request seeks to secure ecologically sustainable use of chickens in South Africa and promote only justifiable social and economic development in the poultry sector, taking into account the welfare concerns of chickens.

We further wish to record that the environmental right and its application insofar as it relates to animal welfare protects all animals as defined in terms of legislation including the Animals Protection Act 71 of 1962 and Performing Animals Protection Act 24 of 1935.

We trust that Nestle will revisit its refusal to provide access to records requested in terms of PAIA so as to advance transparency and accountability in relation to the environment, noting the Supreme Court of Appeal’s remark that:

“Corporations operating within our borders, whether local or international, must be left in no doubt that in relation to the environment...there is no room for secrecy and that constitutional values will be enforced”.

Should you fail to do so, we reserve our rights to exhaust the legal remedies available to us, including but not limited to, approaching the Information Regulator to lodge a complaint in respect of Nestle, and/or approach the courts.

Kindly respond to this correspondence by no later than 27 March 2024 given that we are currently preparing our public report in which we will rate Nestle in relation to its transparency and stance on animal welfare and environmental sustainability, among other matters.

The rating will be informed by your response to this correspondence, as well as the previous correspondence and any records provided.

All of our rights are reserved.

Kindly acknowledge receipt of this email.

Kind regards
