Thank you for your email. We note your view that your involvement in our project 'is unnecessary'. We disagree. We have thus exercised our constitutionally protected right to access to information of a private body and delivered the necessary form in terms of the Promotion of Access to Information Act 2 of 2000 (PAIA) to Big Dutchman on 21 November 2022. Under the circumstances, Big Dutchman has a legal obligation to provide access to the information, given that the information is required for the protection of the environmental right, as set out in our previous correspondence.

To clarify our position, Big Dutchman is a supplier of cages and other equipment to egg producers in the egg supply chain. Big Dutchman is thus a key role player in the South African egg supply chain. Given that our project relates, among other matters, to advancing cage free commitments and chicken welfare more generally, the records requested from one of the primary cage and equipment suppliers in the country are indeed necessary for our project. They will, among other things, enable the pursuit of corporate accountability and transparency in the egg supply chain in South Africa.

We accordingly look forward to receiving the records requested by no later than 23 December 2022 as required by PAIA.

Kindly acknowledge receipt of this email.

Yours sincerely,

[REDACTED]

Please note that Big Dutchman is purely a supplier of equipment to the poultry and pig industries, and are not involved with physical livestock whatsoever and do not instruct our customers as to the manner in which their livestock is to be kept. We therefore believe that our involvement in this is unnecessary.

We trust that this clarifies our position, but should any further information be required, please do not hesitate to contact us.
